Everyone told him he was doing a very foolish thing, as there was no doubt at all that the place was haunted.	1	A
She had a magnificent constitution, and a really wonderful amount of animal spirits.	2	B
Gardenias and the peerage were his only weaknesses. Otherwise he was extremely sensible.	3	C
She was a wonderful Amazon, and had once raced old Lord Bilton on her pony twice round the park	4	D
They were delightful boys, and, with the exception of the worthy Minister, the only true republicans of the family.	5	E

Matching exercise

Match each phrase from the story with an image.

Right in front of him he saw, in the wan moonlight, an old man of terrible aspect.

1

A

"My dear sir," said Mr. Otis, "I really must insist on your oiling those chains, and have brought you for that purpose a small bottle of the Tammany Rising Sun Lubricator."

2

B

Just, however, as he reached the top of the great oak staircase, a door was flung open, two little white-robed figures appeared, and a large pillow whizzed past his head!

3

C

Matching exercise

Match each phrase from the story with an image.

He contented himself with becoming faintly phosphorescent, and vanished with a deep churchyard groan, just as the twins had come up to him.

1

A

He chuckled to himself, and turned the corner; but no sooner had he done so than, with a piteous wail of terror, he fell back, and his blanched face in his long, bony hands.

2

B

From the eyes streamed rays of scarlet light, the mouth was a wide well of fire, and a hideous garment, like to his own, swathed with its silent snows the Titan form.

3

C

Matching exercise

Match each phrase from the story with an image.

He flung it wide open, when a heavy jug of water fell right down on him, wetting him to the skin, and just missing his left shoulder by a couple of inches.

1

Suddenly there leaped out at him from a dark corner two figures, who waved their arms wildly above their heads, and shrieked out "BOO!" in his ear.

2

Accordingly, he made arrangements for appearing to Virginia's little lover in his celebrated impersonation of <<the Vampire Monk, or the Bloodless Benedictine>>

To her immense surprise, however, it was the Canterville Ghost himself!	1	A
"Well, really," said the Ghost, rather meekly, "what was I to do? It is a very difficult thing to get real blood nowadays"	2	B
Then the ghost spoke again, and his voice sounded like the sighing of the wind. "Have you read the prophecy on the library window?"	3	C
She opened her eyes, and saw the wall slowly fading away like a mist, and a great black cavern in front of her. A bitter cold wind swept around them, and she felt something pulling at her dress.	4	D

Matching exercise

Match each phrase from the story with an image.

After riding all over the common, they turned their horses' heads homewards, and reached the Chase about eleven o'clock, dead-tired and almost heart-broken.	1	A
Just as they were passing out of the dining-room, midnight began to boom from the clock tower, and when the last stroke sounded they heard a crash and a sudden shrill cry.	2	B
A panel at the top of the staircase flew back with a loud noise, and out on the landing, looking very pale and white, with a little casket in her hand, stepped Virginia.	3	C
When Virginia touched it, it swung back on its heavy hinges, and they found themselves in a little low room, with a vaulted ceiling, and one tiny grated window	4	D

Matching exercise

Match each phrase from the story with an image.

As the coffin was being lowered into the grave, Virginia stepped forward, and laid on it a large cross made of white and pink almond-blossoms.	1	A
They were perfectly magnificent, especially a certain ruby necklace with old Venetian setting, which was really a superb specimen of sixteenth-century work, and their value was so great that Mr. Otis felt considerable scruples about allowing his daughter to accept them	2	B
There had been a great deal of difficulty at first about the inscription on Sir Simon's tombstone, but finally it had been decided to engrave on it the initials of the old gentleman's name, and the verse from the library window.	3	C
"You can have your secret as long as I have your heart," he murmured.	4	D

Choose one of the members of the Otis family. Write a message to your best friend back home in America, telling them all about your experience of moving to England. Tell them about any interesting things that have happened to you since you've moved, and explain the differences and similarities between England and America.

At the end of Chapter 5, the Canterville ghost takes Virginia through the wainscoting to help him move on from the world of the living. The next thing we know, she has reappeared with the casket of jewels.

Trying to match the storytelling style used by Wilde, write 3 paragraphs continuing Virginia and the ghost's story from the moment they go through the wainscoting to the moment Virginia reappears with the jewels. Explain what Virginia does to help the ghost pass on, and how the experience makes them both feel.

Pretend you are the Chair of the Council of British Ghosts and Ghouls, a body that oversees the haunting activities of all the ghosts in Britain. You have just heard that the Canterville ghost has passed on into death.

Write a eulogy about him to publish in The Haunted Herald (the most popular ghost newspaper in Britain). In the eulogy, describe the Canterville ghost, describe some of his most notable past achievements, and explain why and how he passed on into death.
